

Anty Drudge Discovers Why George Has No Appetite.

Anty Drudge—"What? eating dinner in this steamy, smelly kitchen? I should think it would take your appetite away."

Mrs. Slow—"I have noticed that George doesn't eat much on washdays."

Anty Drudge—"How can he! Why don't you use Fels-Naptha? Boiling water isn't necessary; and you'll be through your wash plenty of time to have dinner in the dining-room. Or if you prefer the kitchen, there will be no steam or bad smells."

Talk about energy!

A half cake of Fels-Naptha soap can display more energy in getting rid of dirt in half an hour than an able-bodied woman can in half a day.

But there's this difference: Much of the woman's energy is wasted.

When she rubs clothes hard on a washboard she wears out the clothes in trying to rub out the dirt.

Fels-Naptha concentrates its energy on the dirt—dissolves it into tiny particles that are easily rinsed away—without harming the most delicate fabric.

And it does this in cool or lukewarm water, without hot water or boiling, summer or winter.

Do you prefer to supply the dirt-removing energy yourself or to use that stored up in a cake of Fels-Naptha?

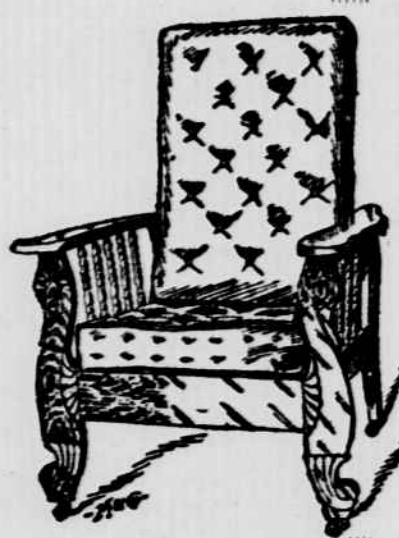

If you choose the easier and better way, follow directions on the red and green wrapper.

HINTS to WOMEN READER'S

GRAY VOILE.

The beautiful little afternoon house frock sketched above is an example of the much used ribbon trimming. In this instance one edge of the ribbon is gathered, forming a ruffle, and these ribbon ruffles are supplemented by others of lace. The frock is fashioned of gray voile over blue silk. There is a sort of fichu on the bodice composed of alternate ruffles of lace and ribbon, the latter in the shade of the under slip. The skirt is trimmed in these ribbon ruffles only, each terminating at a bow of black velvet on the left side.

ACCESSORIES OF DRESS AS CHRISTMAS PRESENTS

Quaint Designs in New Theater Bonnets—Coiffure Ornaments in Bewildering Variety—Latest Bags of Fur.

Little accessories of dress make suitable Christmas gifts, and in all the shops there is now displayed an exceptionally attractive collection of bags, scarf and muff sets, coiffure ornaments, fans, theater bonnets, hoods, etc., for the edification of Christmas shoppers.

Scarves make very desirable Christmas gifts, and they appear in a multitude of forms, from the great head-enveloping veil of chiffon or silk tissue to the exquisite shawl of rare, cowbwoy lace or tissue laden with intricate hand embroidery. Description seems a hopeless task, for it is in the exquisite colorings and texture of the materials that most of the beauty of these accessories lies.

Silk mouseline is the material used for one scarf. It is edged with a narrow band of skunk. The hood is made of the palest of pink chiffon and ornamented at each side by a spray of pink silk roses. The bonnet is lined with pink satin. Another theater hood is made of fine tulle lace, threaded with gold. At the sides the gathers are held in place by a gold cord and tassels.

Still another bonnet is a small caplike affair, made of pale blue chiffon trimmed about the edge with a frill of chiffon, with long chiffon strings. The bonnet is ornamented with tiny pink roses.

There are the quaintest of theater bonnets on display for the Christmas trade. Some are made of gold or silver lace and ornamented with small clusters of flowers. Others are made of chiffon or gauze, and trimmed with velvet and a band of hand embroidery in colors. One of the bonnets is made of white chiffon, with a pale blue band of hand embroidery. At the edge of the band appears a narrow edge of black velvet. There is a frill of chiffon on the face.

Another theater bonnet is fashioned from the gold lace, lined with pink satin. At the left side is a cluster of small roses made of pink silk. Roses made of silk or chiffon or metallic gauze ornament bandeau, ribbon or scarfs of tulle for the evening coiffure.

Ornaments for the coiffure also make charming Christmas gifts, and are obtainable in every imaginable form and material. Small buckles in square and round form, made up of tiny roses or rosettes and leaves, held in place loops of ribbon attached to a band which is wound closely around the head. Among the assortment is a bandeau made of gold lace. At the left side is a cluster of small roses, buds and leaves. Another attractive band is made of gold and silver lace, with a large stone which is an ornament to match finishes the band and supports an egret. A band of silk or colored velvet is decorated with sprays of flowers and leaves in gold or silver, and handsome effects are obtained with gold or silver lace, jewel studded. One bandeau is made of silver lace, and at the back is an ornament, to which is attached a handsome white egret. There are many metallic or jeweled bows, but the scarf and muff are offered.

The foundation of these sets is velvet, tapestry, brocade or satin, with bands of fur for trimming. The material of one three-piece set is black velvet of an exquisite quality and trimming of narrow bands of seal.

The enormous muff is bordered with a narrow band of seal and at the lower left hand corner there appears a spray of dark red silk flowers and leaves. The cap is one of the close-fitting models, with a round crown which sets down well on the head. The narrow brim is turned up at the sides and back and is edged with a band of the seal and lined with colored silk. Red silk flowers and leaves ornament the hat at the left side. The bag is made much on the order of an envelope with square turn-over flap. The edges are bordered by a band of seal and trimmed at the left corner of the flap with a cluster of red silk flowers.

Many handsome bags of velvet, fur-trimmed, are to be seen. A good looking model is made of black velvet lined with silk. There is a flap which forms a point finished with a handsome ornament and tasseled.

Bags of fur are the newest thing in this line and are to be had in surprising variety. Ermine, baby lamb, caracul, Persian lamb, mink and seal are all used. An attractive example is made of ermine with gold mounting and cord. The sides are ornamented by the black tails.

There are bags of gorgeous broadcloth silks, vivid and rich in colorings, and toned down by a veiling of black chiffon. These are handsomely mounted and are elegant and distinctive without being conspicuous.

Of stunning bags in silk, satin and velvet, almost hidden under metallic laces and embroideries, there is practically no end. And it is almost needless to say to describe the delightful little and big bags fashioned from metallic laces and nets in connection with silk stuffs of beautiful colorings.

Many of these coquettish trifles are not mounted, but merely drawn up on a metallic or silken cord, and are obtained merely by laying a handsome open design in metallic lace over satin or dull silk of rich coloring and outlining the design with metallic cord or soutache.

The new horn buttons rimmed in contrasting color come in a variety of combinations.

Machine stitching is very popular on skirts and coat suits of cheviot and English suitings.

Fur is used more extensively than ever in trim dresses intended to wear without a wrap.

Charmaine continues to be the fashionable fabric for afternoon wear. The favorite trimming is silk fringe.

There is a great deal of talk as to a coming change in the figure from the present narrow silhouette to the slightly nipped in waist and fuller skirt.

THE DAILY CHIT-CHAT.

By Ruth Cameron.

The custom of making out a Christmas list of articles that would be acceptable to one's self as Christmas gifts came up for consideration the other day.

The custom was promptly stigmatized as cold blooded and generally undesirable.

Do you think it is?

Myself, I can't see it that way. If Christmas were a time when those whom the spirit moves made gifts to those whom they most loved, Christmas list of one's wants would not be the proper thing.

But since we all know that at Christmas time certain persons are undoubtedly going to make us gifts of a certain monetary value, whether the gift is promptly or not, and that said persons are probably racking their brains as to what said gifts shall be, I can't see why a Christmas list isn't a very logical and kindly custom.

Indeed, I think the making of such a list is not only within the lines of good breeding, but even a positive duty.

Make your list long enough so that the custom will be promptly stigmatized as cold blooded and generally undesirable.

Try to think up plenty of needs which some one else, who will be ready to show it to inquiring friends and relatives, and I think you will be doing a good deed.

In the first place you will be helping some one to solve the nagging problem of what to give you.

In the second place you will be giving some one the opportunity of presenting you with something you really want. Now don't you take double pleasure in giving and receiving? Very well. Remember then that other people are likely to feel the same way.

Not only do I think that every one ought to make out such a list, but I further believe that every one ought to consult such lists, or, when they are a missing quantity, to inquire of the beneficiary's next friends what his wants are.

Perhaps you ought to feel ashamed, but I never can feel the same gratitude for a gift which was evidently selected at random, as I do when I know that it has been chosen after consultation.

Last year I received among my Christmas gifts, a little rubber face cloth bag. I thought it was a very nice gift, and I needed a soapbox. Both these facts my family knew, and would gladly have told me, but I didn't know it.

She had taken the trouble to ask. But she didn't. Am I rightfully ungrateful that I can't feel any warmth of gratitude for that totally superfluous article?

We are always saying that it is the thought that counts, and I am sure that it is the thought that counts.

It is illogical then to consider the gift less desirable when the thought is quite left out?

We can all of us imagine a finer, more spontaneous, less cut-and-dried Christmas celebration, in which Christmas lists and consultations of them would be superfluous.

But, as it is, it is not, and it ought to be.

A Few Helpful Hints.

Many large velvet hats with turned-up brims are seen.

Lace is much used as ruffles on skirts of evening frocks.

Dark boules are trimmed with white mouseline de soie.

The new horn buttons rimmed in contrasting color come in a variety of combinations.

Machine stitching is very popular on skirts and coat suits of cheviot and English suitings.

Fur is used more extensively than ever in trim dresses intended to wear without a wrap.

Charmaine continues to be the fashionable fabric for afternoon wear. The favorite trimming is silk fringe.
